WHEREVER there is a building of value, there has been a blue print, a plan; somewhere there was a vision, a dream. The great temples of our social order did not just happen; they were products of brain and brawn and mind. They were born in the purposefulness of a human soul. These dreams that have formed the foundation of great temples were not artistic fascinations of imaginary minds, but were genuine foresight and vision. They were put into effect by activity, labor, struggle and determination. Against odds, against hardships, and against forces of chaos they stood in defiance occupation and conquest.

So runs the stream of human events wherein human destinies are shaped and lives are built. There must be patterned activity, vision and dreams. Behind every well-built life there is a blue print, a design. Random activity is not the line of approach to success. There must be a definite pursuit of objectives and goals. Dream a dream and then work to make that dream come true.

Draw a blue print and build your life accordingly.

Yours sincerely,

JAMES B. BOREN
